New Cross-island Road to Siumu in the works

PAPAUTA- Building a new Tanugamanono cross island road to Siumu is about to start.

By: Nanai Taofiga Laveitiga Tuiletufuga

Financial compensation for lands, survey and mapping required by the donor are the main setbacks which bottlenecked for several years the construction of the new wider cross island road from Tanugamanono to Siumu.

But this week, the project is about to proceed with Government awarding the multi-million tala contract to a Chinese contractor.

Estimated to be in the range of $15 million tala, awarding the contract which was recommended by the Tenders Board as the most qualified and suitable bidder for the job has prompted Cabinet to initiate processes to create a level playing for local contractors and companies.

“It’s a long standing issue,” says Prime Minister Fiamē Naomi Mataafa. “Our local companies and contractors are handicapped to meet some of the contract requirements and Cabinet has tasked the Ministry of Finance to submit recommendations on how these shortcomings can be addressed,” she added.

The Prime Minister recommended for local contractors to consider the Joint Bid Option to level the playing field but mindful that the final decision is with the contractors and not Government.

The project is expected to take 12 to 18 months to be completed with construction to start in the coming weeks.

Seasonal workers, entry visa, permanent residence, permits & PM Fiamē

Easy access for local residents to travel to our Pacific neighbors including New Zealand and Australia re-surfaced during a Press Conference between Prime Minister Fiamē Naomi Mataafa and the local media yesterday.

The issue has been the subject of statements by Prime Minister Fiamē during recent bi-lateral talks with neighboring American Samoa and most recently the Pacific Forum Leaders Retreat in Fiji.

During the last two Atoa o Samoa Executive Meetings with the American Samoa Government leaders, Prime Minister Fiamē made no secrets in calling out the territorial government that Samoa is more than ready to end the permit regime if the territory agrees to end their entry permits for local residents. Fiamē cited local laws which provides 90 days entry for incoming visitors including U.S. nationals and citizens to enter and remain in Samoa as leverage to support

ICT - the answer to quality education

Information, Communication and Technology, (ICT) is hailed as the catalyst which retained students in 20 schools across Samoa connected with their learning.

And all credit goes to the joint project between the Ministry of Education, Sports, and Culture, UNESCO and the Japanese Government.

The project that initially took off in 2021 was officially closed in a ceremony at Taumeasina Island Resort last week on Wednesday.

The project partially

ICT in education has opened many doors to improving education delivery to rural schools across the country in the project between the Ministry of Education, Sports and Culture, UNESCO and the Japanese Government.

Initiated in 2021 to aid in ensuring that school children across Samoa continued to receive their lessons via internet, and through the use of technology from their teachers during Covid-19, the program officially came to close on Wednesday last week at Taumeasina Island Resort.

But, Japanese Ambassador to Samoa Senta and UNESCO Director Ms Nisha and UNESCO, ICT in Education Director Sherwood said the event was not the end of the project.

Instead, the hope was that the project would be kept alive by the ministry, the teachers and the students.

Deputy Chief Executive Officer (D.C.E.O.) for the Ministry of Education, Sports and Culture Tuaepepe Perenise Tinei reminded of the importance of the project for the children of Samoa.

She said education continued to be a corner stone for the development of Samoa's economy and social development, and gratitude was very much for the international partners.

On behalf of the Government, Ministry, schools and children to express our appreciation for contribution from the Government of Japan in the development of Samoa's economy.

Thanks is also to U.N.E.S.C.O. for technical support through their contribution of specialised skills and knowledge, resources and partnership that allows the children of Samoa equal opportunities in ICT in education ways to educate the children due to covid 19 impacts.

Students through this project will be able to carry out research on the different subjects they learn in the classroom, further improving access to information that will improve their learning said the Deputy Chief Executive Officer.

And, there is more the project also aids teachers with executing their role as teacher.

U.N.E.S.C.O. Director of Office and Representative to the Pacific States, Ms Nisha also urged the ministry, principals and students to continue on the project.

Ambassador of Japan to Samoa Senta Keisuke reminded that the initiation of the project was very timely and significant to education in Samoa especially because of COVID-19.

The introduction of I.C.T. in schools play a pivotal role in quality education in Samoa because it involved the distribution of expertise and access to the internet.

And it meant for the children of Samoa inclusive opportunities for all children even those with disabilities now have access.

The introduction of the project address national challenges faced by in education in Samoa but it means a more resilient education system.

And a resilient education system is pivotal role of a robust education said Senta.

I.C.T. in Education Curriculum Specialist from U.N.E.S.C.O. Roland Sherwood in his presentation spoke about the timeline of the project which started from 2001 until this year.

He pointed out that there was much consultations between the Ministry and schools and him to ensure that the right equipment and tools were provided to aid in ensuring the success of the project.

This meant when procurement of the equipment was made there was a lot of travelling to the rural areas where these 20 recipient schools were located to transport and deliver as well as fit and install the equipment.

Teachers and students were also provided with the proper training to ensure they were well versed with the use of the equipment that included Apple Ipads, amongst many other state of the art technology.

Also, during this project Mr Sherwood was able to aid in the establishment and launch of the Lifelong learning lab situated within the M.E.S.C. compound open to anyone including teachers who require a place to access quality resources for learning.

Seasonal workers, entry visa, permanent residence, permits & PM Fiame the local Governments' decision.

Negotiations will resume when the Atoa Samoa meets in American Samoa this month.

Most recently during the Pacific Forum Leaders retreat in Fiji, the Samoan Prime Minister also tabled for discussion the impact of the Seasonal Employment Program for the New Zealand and Australia's horticulture and viticulture to Pacific Islands including Samoa.

In particular, the rapid labor movement prompting Pacific Islanders to abort their jobs to secure higher paying wages from the seasonal work incentives is slowly and surely becoming a threaten to the economic stability of the respective Pacific Islands.

Prime Minister Fiame told the media that during the Fiji retreat she asked why New Zealand and Australia are swift with their approving responses when it comes to granting Seasonal Work visas for Pacific workers however when it comes to entry visas for Pacific Islands residents there is silence from the Tasmania, (New Zealand and Australia).

She suggested one option is for the Pacific Forum Leaders to endorse a similar regional pact like the PACER Plus which sets the guidelines export and imports, professional services, employment and human resources to ensure a level playing field for all the players including the Pacific Islands.

However, Australia's dodge the issue with her response while New Zealand's Deputy Prime Minister attending the retreat gunned down the dialogue claiming that her country will be flooded by Pacific Islanders which would create new social and immigration problems.

But the Samoa Leader disagrees citing the free travel in Europe as a classic example on how free travel access can be a win-win situation in the Pacific including the Tasmania.

"There are no problems in Europe when it comes to people movements and travel and I firmly believe that this can be the case as we Samoans most common need to travel is for family faalavelaves, visit relatives and then return home due to our family and cultural ties," added the Prime Minister.

"While we did not reach a favorable outcome, (in Fiji) I am content that the issue of free travel in the region is now an issue of real conversation for leaders and it's a good start," she told the Press Conference.

Meanwhile, the Pacific Forum Leaders Secretariat is now in charge of a report and recommendation to the Leaders on how best to address the seasonal workers program and its role to the national economy and security of the respective Pacific Forum countries.

since 2020. The tournament, contested by the national 'A' teams of Fiji, Japan, Tonga and Samoa, will be hosted in Apia from 3-13 May, 2023.

After six consecutive editions organized in Fiji (2015-20) since its rebranding as the Pacific Challenge, the World Rugby-funded tournament is returning to Samoa in 2023 for an exciting competition contested by hosts Manu Samoa, Fiji Warriors, Tonga A, and Junior Japan.

Organized in Apia between 3-13 May, the tournament will be played across three match days in a round-robin format with each team playing three matches. The Pacific Challenge 2023 champions will be the team who records the maximum number of competition points across the tournament and the full match scheduled has been confirmed by the international federation.

The four teams involved from the Asia-Pacific region will be formed from the best locally-based players, with most promised of a bright future with their senior national team. Competition should be fierce at Apia Park between defending champions Junior Japan, Fiji Warriors and their record nine titles in the competition, Tonga A and Manu Samoa looking for a third crown on home soil.

Each team's squad of 28 players must consist of 23 players that are 23 years of age and under as of 3 May, 2023, while the remaining five players can be any age over 18. The tournament will allow future stars of the game in the region to develop their skills in a competitive environment against cross-border opposition.

FIRST INTERNATIONAL TOURNAMENT ORGANISED IN SAMOA IN 13 YEARS

Samoa are looking forward to hosting the competing teams and their first international World Rugby tournament in 13 years, the last having been the World Rugby Pacific Nations Cup in Apia in 2010. This year also marks 50 years of diplomatic relations between Samoa and Japan and their two senior teams will meet on 28 September at Rugby World Cup 2023 in France later this year.

Lakapi Samoa CEO Faleomavaega Vincent said: "We are excited to be hosting this event in Samoa after the last three years of the pandemic but also a start on what is an exciting year for rugby in our region heading towards Rugby World Cup in France. We are grateful to World Rugby for bringing the games to Samoa and we look forward to hosting our friends from Japan, Tonga and Fiji."

World Rugby continues to invest in various age-grade competitions throughout the world to support the pathway from junior teams to international test rugby. The World Rugby U20 Championship and Trophy are also returning in 2023 and will take place in South Africa and Kenya respectively in June and July.

Fonoia graduated on Friday with a Bachelor of TVET

It's never too late to learn

By: Leota Marc Membrere

The success of 62 year old Fonoia Faatasi Teueli is proof that age is not an issue when getting a degree, and he praises God for His guidance.

Fonoia hails from villages of Salelologa, Puleia, and Siusega and was one of the graduates of the National University of Samoa (NUS) on Friday.

He not only took a Bachelor Degree home, but he had also taken the Future FIT Award as the top BTVET Student.

Asked by the Savali News how he feels of the achievements, Fonoia had three words, "Praise the Lord."

He firstly gave thanks to God because and said if it was not for Him, he would not have achieved this.

Happy about what he has received, Fonoia also pointed out that he is already 62 years old but the age did not stop him from going back to study, which he also sees as challenge for the students in the future.

A former student of Logoipulotu College and the Western Samoa Technical Institute (WSTI) Fonoia had studied Fitting and Machining in 1982 to 1983 and started teaching Technical and Vocational Education and Training (TVET) at the TTI, Polytechnic, and then onto the NUS in 2006 until this day.

Asked about his next step, Fonoia says he prays to God for more strength and a longer life and if he continues to teach in the future, he will do so for the students of the nation.

LA O SAMOA President Tootoooleaava Fanaafi Aiono Le Tagaloa presenting the $10,000 cheque to a staff member of the USP Samoa Campus

LA O SAMOA presents scholarships to NUS and USP students

By: Leota Marc Membrere

The Lala Aluminai Otago Samoa also known LA O SAMOA presented $20,000 worth of scholarships to the National University of Samoa (NUS) and the University of the South Pacific (USP) Samoa Campus to mark the 60 years of Samoa's Independence and the signing of the Treaty of Friendship.

The financial assistance from the Alumni provides $1,000 Fees Assistance Scholarships to ten Undergraduate Students of NUS and ten from USP on the basis they meet the requirements:

- Minimum B+ average in the Foundation Programme.
- Registered in an Undergraduate Programme (Part Time/Full Time).
- Priority to be given to Education (Primary), Science, Technology, Mathematics and Physics.

In response to Savali Newspaper queries, President of the LA O SAMOA Tootoooleaava Fanaafi Aiono Le Tagaloa says that the establishment of the scholarship goes back to a visit by the University of Otago to Samoa in October last year.

As part of the Otago visit to Samoa there was a Symposium of the Treaty of Friendship hosted at NUS and convened by the Dean of the Faculty of Arts Professor Sauia Dr. Louise Mataia also an Otago alumna.

After the Symposium – the Otago Vice Chancellor Professor David Murdoch announced the Fees Assistance where the University of Otago Alumni Chapter LA O SAMOA was putting in $10,000 Samoan tala and the University of Otago was matching it with their $10,000 Samoan Tala.

Tootooleaava told Savali News exclusively that areas highlighted as a priority for the scholarships are education (Primary), science, mathematics, and physics.

"LA O SAMOA is keenly aware of the fact that finance is the greatest obstacle for those seeking to continue their education after Secondary School which is why it decided any way students can be assisted in this manner would be most beneficial and the priority areas identified are the ones where we have a few gaps in Samoa," Tootoooleaava says.

The cheques were presented to the Universities on Friday and Monday, and she says that the hope is to fundraise and collect more money to continue the assistance.

Samoans graduated from the University of Otago are close to 1,000.

The LA O SAMOA was established in 2016, and its Patron is Council of Deputies Tapusatele Le Mamea Tuiletufuga Dr. Ropati Mualia who is an Otago alum.

In his keynote address, Faualo says it is a significant day for the promotes as the ceremony marks a new development in their career as police and prison officers.

"We are all aware that this is not an easy profession, as you have to put yourself out there in order to protect and keep the peace while you uphold the law at the same time as well as being put in harm's way while maintaining order in prison's facilities," the Minister says.

He had the applauded the promotes, and encouraged them to stay the course and do their best in serving the people of Samoa.

"In unity we stand firm and serve with pride and honor," he says.

Dr. Rosita Semester Toafa Palale

Dr. Palale's telling story of success

By: Leota Marc Membrere

Your trials and tribulations plays a leading role in Dr. Rosita Semester Toafa Palale telling story of success.

Hailing from Lalomanu and Satitoo, Dr. Palale reached another pinnacle in her success story as one of the graduates from the National University of Samoa on Friday.

Not only receiving the honors of graduating with a Bachelor in Medicine and Surgery, she took three top prizes:

- Namulauulu Dr. Iakopo & Mrs Tusiata Esera Memorial Award – Trophy and cash prize $500 for Clinical Excellence in Internal Medicine
- Lolofigetele Taule'ale'ausumai Dr. Aird Hill Eti Enosa Award – Trophy and cash prize $500 for Clinical Excellence in Surgery
- Tofaeono Dr. Tile Iupati Imo Memorial Award – Trophy and cash prize $300 for Clinical Excellence in Specialties

The journey was not an easy one, but to the daughter of Reverend Vaituu Palale and Vaisaili Palale of the EFKS Satitoo, she is determined to move forward and take on any challenge she is presented.

Speaking exclusively to the Savali News, Dr. Palale revealed that she was motivated to study hard in medicine as her late grandmother Faletui Fuataga Penita had fallen ill and later passed away.

This happened halfway through her studies and at the time she had wanted so much to take care of her grandmother.

Being from Lalomanu and Satitoo, it is a distance from Samoa's main hospital at Motootua and this also motivated her to become a doctor, to serve her people.

"When someone needs to be taken to the hospital in Apia it takes like 45 minutes and I thought if we had a doctor in Lalomanu that would help so much," Dr. Palale says.

And she has set her sight at serving as a doctor in Lalomanu, for her village, district, and family.

"I don't ever see myself working overseas, this country needs doctors and I will work here definitely," she says.

One other challenge she shared about was that she is a Reverend's daughter and also the eldest child in the family and was needed by her family, church, and Youth group a lot.

"It was actually really hard so I think I cannot count how many times I have cried because I wanted to focus on school alone but I could not do that because it was also my responsibility to my family, my parents, and my church," she says.

"Now looking back my dad always said that if you put God first He will pave a path for you and I think today is a testimony of that because I didn't give up on my youth, on my church, and my God and I think that really got me here."

The National University of Samoa (NUS) has conferred an Honorary Doctor of Letters to Luamanuvao Dame Winnie Laban in recognition of her contribution to Samoans and Pacific islanders in New Zealand and her ten years of service to the University as a Council Member.

She was conferred the Honorary Doctor of Letters at the University's Graduation last Friday.

Speaking during the ceremony, Luamanuvao says that it has been an honor to serve on the NUS council where she has had the opportunity and privilege to contribute to the development of the University.

"I am deeply honored to be awarded an Honorary Doctor of Letters from the National University of Samoa. Faafetai tele lava," Luamanuvao says.

She had then addressed the graduates of the University saying they do not become graduates by themselves as their success is the result of support from family friends, church, communities.

She had then congratulated all of the graduates on Friday, stating that they are graduating at a challenging time of change and uncertainty, but having recognized and up to date qualifications from a top University is a great opportunity for them.

Luamanuvao is the daughter of Emi Anealaise Tunupopo (eldest daughter of Tunupopo Patu of Vaiala and Va'asamalelagi of Safune and Falelatai) and Ta'atofa Kenneth Laban (eldest son of Leutele Va'afusuaga Poutoa of Falefa, Falese'ela and Lefaga and Winnie Laban of Levili).

She is a Social Work graduate from Victoria University of Wellington and worked as a public servant, community worker, probation officer, and school counsellor. In 1992 she was bestowed the Samoan chiefly title of Luamanuvao from her mother's village.

In 1998 she completed a post-graduate qualification in Development Studies from Massey University. In 1999 Luamanuvao was elected as the first Pacific Island woman to the New Zealand Parliament. From 2002 to 2010 she was the Member of Parliament for the Mana Electorate, serving as Minister of Pacific Island Affairs, Minister for the Community and Voluntary Sector, and Associate Minister of Social Development, Economic Development and Trade, leading trade missions to Pacific Island nations.

In 2011 she was awarded the Companion of the Queen's Service Order (QSO) for public and community services.

For my family

By: Leota Marc Membrere

Providing for his family was a driving force for Savaiian police officer Misi Ioane of Fusi Safotulafai, and the new Sergeant is ready for what the future has for him.

Sergeant Ioane is one of the 57 men and women of Samoa's Police Force that were promoted on Thursday.

He first joined the police force in 2013 as a Constable, and ten years later he has achieved a milestone by moving onto the rank of Sergeant.

Sergeant Ioane was in tears when he was greeted by his family and friends who were proud of his achievements.

Speaking exclusively to the Savali News, praised the Lord and said his family was the reason why he gave his all to move up the ranks.

He says the biggest challenge he faced is taking care of his family and today's cost of living, with the promotion he sees this is an opportunity to earn more for his family, village, and church.

His kids were a reminder every day to work hard for a promotion, and now being promoted he knows his family is proud and is ready to continue to serve Samoa.

"I would like to thank the Minister, Commissioner and Management for the promotion," Sergeant Ioane told the Savali News.

He is also thankful for the staff of the Tuasivi Outposts where he currently serves, and acknowledged his family, friends, village, and church.
